Chinese Brush Painting

Mayee Futterman specializes in Chinese Brush Painting. It is the foundation of all oriental brush arts and has strongly influenced Western painting. The dynamic, unpredictable, and sensorial interaction of brush, ink, water, and rice paper through the artist's hand is indeed a transformative and enlightening experience.

Mayee is a full-time artist and private instructor. A large selection of her work is in the collection of California Hospital Medical Center and permanently exhibited at the Los Angeles Center for Women's Health. Mayee's award winning work is also in various private collections throughout the US and around the world including Canada, Middle East, Singapore, and Philippines. She was recently featured on CNN Philippines' morning show "New Day."

For over two decades, she has studied and apprenticed under professor and master brush artist, Dr. Ning Yeh including at UCLA, Coastline College, and Cerritos College. She serves as teaching assistant and has co-authored five of Dr. Yeh's instructional art books including "108 Flowers: Brush Painting Lessons Volumes 1-4" and "Landscape Lessons".

Mayee's curriculum is strongly founded on classical Chinese brush painting skills, techniques, philosophy, and subject matter; while bringing a contemporary approach, influences from her multi-cultural experience, and a rigor and aesthetic sensibility from her architecture and urban design background. She has a Master of Architecture II from UCLA and a Bachelor of Science in Architecture, Cum Laude from the University of the Philippines. Mayee manages and produces social media content for Oriental Art Supply. She has travelled to China numerous times to study and paint.
